Waste Management: Reducing use of Plastic

Use of plastic with its pollution has become one of the most pressing environmental issues which needs to be addressed at every level. Rapid increase in production of disposable plastic products which is available at low cost overwhelms the world's ability to deal with its pollution. Plastic production along with its disposal contribute to an array of environmental and human health problems. So efforts need to be made to spread awareness among end users about consequences of high plastic usage.
